

Poll Shows Interesting Results

Jill Young - Mon Sep 26 2011

A poll being conducted by Forum Research by the Toronto Star says that the Liberals and Conservatives are head to head in Ontario during this election campaign.

In southwestern Ontario though, the poll says the Tories have a bit of an edge with 37 percent while the Liberals have 30 percent.

President and CEO of Forum Research Lorne Bosinoff says there is an interesting turn in the London-Fanshawe riding where the NDP is taking the lead.

Bosinoff says the poll shows that in the southwest, the Conservatives are ruling the rural ridings while Liberals are still strong in the urban areas.